SPECIAL CHARACTERISTICS:

We offer a Masters of Social Work within six available tracks.

Aging, Adulthood and Gerontology: In the aging, adulthood and gerontology track of Dominican's MSW program, you'll examine the biological, physical, psychological, sociological, spiritual and economic aspects of aging.

Children, Youth and Family: In the children, youth and family track of Dominican's MSW program, you'll train to protect the welfare of one of the most vulnerable populations in our society.

Global Social Work Practice for Immigrants and Refugees:

In the global social work track of Dominican's MSW program, you'll train to work with immigrant, refugee and Indigenous populations in the United States and around the world. Your coursework will take you through areas such as resettlement, policy initiatives, trauma-informed services and other issues related to the unique needs of this population.

Health and Well-Being: In the health and well-being track of Dominican's MSW program, you'll examine factors that impact health and well-being across the life span. This track prepares you to take a person-centered approach to health, to work collaboratively as a member of an interdisciplinary health care team, and to advocate for access to equitable health care resources for underserved communities.

Military: In the military social work track of Dominican's MSW program, you'll develop the skills to help service members, veterans and their families manage challenges unique to this population.

School Social Work: In the school social work track, you'll train to provide services to students, families and school personnel, and to promote students' academic and social success. You'll also learn to collaborate with co-workers and parents in advocating for positive social change in school settings.
